What happened was described thus by Senator Hitchcock in announcing the negotiations were at an end:

"We presented the Taft reservation on Article Ten as our proposition. There was some conservation as to its exact meaning. We urged them to accept it, or take a few days to decide. But Senator Lodge definitely said he could not accept it.

"We then asked them if they had any counter-proposal or would make one. Mr. Lodge said he could not make any counter proposal. I suggested that we try to agree on a way if for taking up the treaty in the senator Lodge did not want a meeting on that subject. So we are roing to proceed to call it up."

To this Senator Lodge had noting to add, nor would he indicate what his attitude would be on a motion to his statement reviewing the occomposite is the treaty before the senate. In the statement reviewing the occomposite is the treaty before the senate. In the statement reviewing the occomposite in st forth at length his reasons for refusing to compromise on Article
